

Blurb

Ivy is a young 14-year-old girl who lives in a village in Anacortes, Washington called Valor. She's a wingwatcher, and she goes out wingwatching with her friends almost every single day. Watching dragons and drawing them is one of her favorite things to do. One day, when she comes home after wingwatching, she finds Daffodil waiting for her, who tells her that Violet, one of her best friends, has disappeared. She searches the entire village with her friends in the hope of finding her, but Violet is nowhere to be found. In the next few days, even more people start to disappear from the village, which worries Ivy and her friends, making them feel even more hopeless. When they get taken by dragons, they decide not to fight back, hoping that this is the key to finding the missing villagers. Will Ivy and her friends be able to save their village? Or are the lost people gone...forever?
